

New Committers

Welcome to Apache Curator!

For new committers

- An Apache account will have been set up for you. Subscribe to all the Curator mailing lists by going here: <http://curator.apache.org/mail-lists.html>
- Have a look at the general information on the Apache committers' page: <http://www.apache.org/dev/#committers>
- Make sure to `svn checkout` the ASF committers repository: <https://svn.apache.org/repos/private/committers>
- Add an entry for yourself to <https://svn.apache.org/repos/private/committers/info/>. The information there is used to generate the public information about ASF committers on the people.apache.org home page: <http://people.apache.org/>
- Prepare for being a committer. See: For Curator Committers

As your first commit, add yourself to the "developers" section of the parent Curator maven pom.xml file. This will make your name show up in the "team list" when the component web site is generated. You should also generate the website as a nice introduction to using Maven with Curator and publishing to Apache.

As always, do not hesitate to ask if you have any questions or have problems with your account.

Next Steps

Click here for details on on-boarding yourself as a committer.